CANNOT SEND MONEY OUT OF ITALY FREELY

Those Who Wish to Do So Must Prove Absolutely the Necessity for Such Action.

Rome, May 7.—No money can now be sent out of Italy by means of bank drafts unless the sender can prove the absolute necessity for so doing as by the presenting of bills to be paid. This is particularly true of large sums of money. This is one of the measures taken by the government to stabilize exchange and prevent speculation in Italian money. Exchange rates are also fixed by law weekly, to prevent artificial fluctuations.

According to Oscar T. Crosby, who was recently here representing the United States treasury department in connection with efforts to assist Italy's finances, the real difficulty of not only Italy but also England and France is that they are in need of American money to stabilize their exchange. "What they need is dollars," he said. By the plan of Minister of the Treasury Nitti, so far as concerns the Americans here who desire to send money home for any reason, or to any foreign country, they must fill out in duplicate a blank form provided by the bank selling their drafts and on this blank they must give the name of the person to whom money is sent, with the exact reason. Persons traveling may buy the money of the country to which they are destined on presentation of passports or other papers.

NEARLY FOUR MILES IN AIR.

American Army Aviator Made Splendid Record at Houston, Tex.

Dallas, Tex., May 7.—New achievements in endurance and altitude tests at the Texas aviation camps have been recorded frequently this spring. Some of the latest are reported from Ellington field at Houston, where on a single day new camp records for both height and endurance were set. An army flyer, whose name is withheld by order of the executive authorities at the post, climbed to 20,800 feet, only a little less than four miles in the air. On the same day, a civilian demonstrator for an eastern motor company remained in the air, with a passenger for nine hours and 43 minutes, and descended only when his last drop of gasoline had been consumed.

The type of the machine used in the test for altitude, was withheld by the Ellington field authorities. The result, they said, was gratifying and of great value in demonstrating the utility of certain innovations and improvements that have been under consideration for some time. The climbing quality and power and speed developed exceeded expectations.

In the endurance trial some of the officers had been of the opinion that the motor to be tested would stall before the gasoline in the tank was completely exhausted, while the manufacturer's demonstrator contended, of course, that the motor would consume every drop of available fuel. With a passenger he arose at 8:25 a. m. and stayed aloft until he volplaned to a landing at 6:18 p. m., without a hitch to interrupt his flight. The engine continued running without the slightest indication of stalling until the last drop of fuel in the tank was drained into the cylinders.

CUT OUT USELESS WORK.

The Only Effort That Counts To-day Is Something That Helps Win the War.

We all know, in a general way, that some men are engaged in non-essential work in every town in the country. In Athens, Ga., a census was taken to find out the exact wastage of muscle that could be turned to war work. It was found, according to conservative reports, that the non-essential house servants alone, in that town of 20,000 people, could furnish the labor for cultivating enough land to produce at a moderate yield 75,000 bushels of corn.

There is only one test to apply to any human effort to-day for the determination of its value—and that is, Does it help win the war?

Usually within a few hours' ride of towns where men are engaged in work that is utterly useless from a war-winning standpoint there are farmers seeking labor to produce crops—crops that will help win the war—crops without which we cannot win the war!

In every town local public sentiment can cause these non-essential workers to be sent to the front to win the war! Do you suppose Hindenburg is losing sleep over the surplus servants in Atlanta, Ga.? Do you suppose the Kaiser worries because a town of 20,000 keeps enough useless house help to produce 75,000 bushels of corn—if they were on farm? But, when Athens, Ga., actually has 75,000 additional bushels of corn to show for the work of the useless servants—when every town in this country has taken husky men from such jobs as running elevators, standing in liveried glory in front of hotel doors, checking grips, driving taxicabs and doing a score of things women can do or the public can do without or individuals do for themselves—then the blasphemous brag of the idle and his companion butlers will find in Athens, Ga., something fearful and foreboding—something to give them the dread that comes to all beasts when they sense the real arousing of a superior foe.

Your town is Athens, Ga. Every town is Athens, Ga. That particular place is named here merely for the sake of illustration, because it happens that Georgia extension workers took a careful survey there and the figures are available as substantiation of general statements applicable to practically all towns in the country. You know we can't win the war without food; you know food can't be produced without farm labor.

As long as your town continues to employ men in non-essential work while farmers in the country need help, you haven't got to war! You may buy Liberty bonds and give to the Red Cross, but you are not at war when farmers seek help and you continue husky men in needless work. Your windows may fly proud service flags, but you are contributing to the Hun's effort to crown with laurels the brave banners.

After the survey Athens, Ga., was asked these questions: "Have you a boy in camp or fighting in France? He is washing his own clothes, perhaps, doing his own dressing, cleaning up his own plate of abode and working many hours per day in the midst of danger. He is doing these things without servants. Are you better than your boy? Do you want him to do your fighting, and be his own servant, and at the same time go hungry, because your surplus servants were not sent to farms to grow food for him?"

You must answer that. Your town must answer it. Apply the acid test: Is this work of value? Is the man now doing the non-essential work of valuable work on a farm? On the basis Athens, Ga., found between 300 and 500 men uselessly employed in a town of 20,000. For example, the survey shows idle chauffeurs with the conclusion that thirty-five are non-essential. Women could take their places or owners could drive farm tractors would be really helping to win the war.

Eight men were running elevators, all of farm qualifications and all listed as non-essential, because in another office building in Athens girls are already running the elevators most satisfactorily. Eighteen males make their living shining shoes. These men doing non-essential work upon the theory that neatly polished shoes in Athens, Ga., do not help the American army break through to Berlin, whereas these eighteen strong men at work in the fields to produce food will help us to win—the Athenians shining their own shoes the while if necessary!

And so the survey continued through various classifications—useless delivery men, soft-drink dispensers, surplus servants. And farmers not far away desirous of labor to produce war crops!

Will your town do as Athens, Ga., declared it would—turn non-essential town workers to an activity that will really amount to something in this war?

POTATOES, GOOD OLD WAYS.

Boil Them.

Drop unpeeled potatoes into boiling salted water. Cook them for twenty to thirty minutes. Drain off the water at once.

Be sure to leave the skins on—if you peel them you waste time and potatoes.

Don't cook them too long—overcooking makes them go to pieces. Don't let them stand in the water after cooking—this makes them soggy.

CRISIS FACES LLOYD GEORGE

Over Letter Written by General Maurice, Questioning Premier's Veracity

HOUSE OF COMMONS TAKES UP MATTER

Motion for Vote of Censure Will Be Debated on Thursday

London, May 8.—A political crisis involving the security of the Lloyd George government has arisen over the letter written by General Maurice, formerly chief director of military operations, in which he questioned the veracity of the premier and the chancellor of the exchequer. In the House of Commons a parliamentary tilt between Andrew Bonar Law for the government and former Premier Asquith resulted in the government's acceptance of a motion by Mr. Asquith that the House discuss the form of inquiry to be made into the statements of General Maurice.

The motion will be debated in the House Thursday and the government has decided to stand or fall on the vote taken after the discussion. The government looks upon the motion as a vote of censure and has called its supporters to be in the House for a vote to-morrow.

"A division is absolutely certain," says the call.

According to the Press association, the proposal to refer the Maurice affair to two judges may be regarded as withdrawn, as the suggestion did not appeal to the members of the House and its rejection by Mr. Asquith and his followers rendered it worthless.

On the other hand, it is added, it is doubtful whether any other form of inquiry will be held and it is likely the premier will give the House the fullest possible information consistent with public safety, citing figures in proof of his statement of the relative strength of the army in January, 1917, and January, 1918. As regards other matters involved in the statement of General Maurice, it is understood that an explanation perfectly consistent with both versions will be made.

COURT OF HONOR TO HEAR MAURICE

British General Was Recently Removed for Criticizing General Foch.

London, May 8.—Andrew Bonar Law, government spokesman in the House of Commons, announced yesterday that the government proposal to ask two judges to act as a court of honor to investigate the charges made by General Maurice, B. Maurice, who was recently removed from the post of director of military operations at the British war office. Mr. Bonar Law said the army council was dealing with questions of discipline growing out of a letter written by General Maurice.

The Man Nobody Knew.

When the face of the hero of Holworthy Hall's new novel, "The Man Nobody Knew," beginning in the May American Magazine, was shattered and torn, the doctors wanted to patch him up. This passage then follows:

There came a day in April when a photograph was requested of him. Surely he knew where there was a likeness of himself, didn't he?

"The individual glanced up from his present task, which was learning to write with his left hand.

"What for?" he muttered.

"Why," said the nurse cheerfully, "for a model. They'll make you look almost exactly the way you did before."

The individual from America sat up straight, so that the nurse was startled by his animation, which was without a parallel in his local history.

"Do you mean to say they can—they can do anything they want? They could take a picture of me and make me look like it?"

"Certainly, they can," he said, in the tone one uses to an alling child.

"They can't! He put his hands to his mutilated face. They could—make me look like it?"

"Why, I don't understand what you mean."

"The individual gestured impatiently. If the nurse said what you say, then they can make me look like any old photograph, or none at all, can't they? Then what do they need it for?"

"Why, to go by," she said helplessly. "You want to look like your old self, don't you?"

But he didn't. He wanted to look like someone else, and that is why he was the man nobody knew.

BUSINESS CONCERNS USING SUGAR MUST SHOW CERTIFICATE

Food Administration Has Set May 15 as the Date for the New Regulation to Take Effect.

St. Albans, May 6. On and after May 15, 1918, wholesale and retail dealers in sugar shall not ship or deliver sugar to any person or concern engaged in any business of manufacturing, bottling, packing or preparing products in which sugar is used until he has secured from the purchaser a certificate or certificates duly endorsed by the buyer and issued to the buyer by the federal food administrator for the state, certifying that the total amount of sugar to be sold or delivered will not give the buyer more than his fair share of the sugar then available for distribution in the United States. Announcement to this effect was made to-night at the office of Acting State Federal Food Administrator John T. Cushing.

This rule shall not apply to shipments or deliveries on bona fide contracts enforceable at law made prior to May 15, 1918, nor does the rule apply to sales or deliveries to hotels, restaurants, boarding houses or other public eating houses whose products are sold for consumption on the premises, nor to wholesale or retail dealers in sugar holding a license from the United States Food Administration, nor to bakers and cracker manufacturers holding a baker's license.

In addition to these exemptions certificates will not be required in sales to individual consumers, or in sales to unlicensed retailers of sugar not engaged in the manufacturing business. Neither will certificates be required in selling to licensed wholesalers, retailers or bakers, even though they use sugar in the manufacture of other products, because the use of sugar by such dealers will be controlled directly by the license regulations.

Among the manufacturers in selling to whom certificates must be required are the following; but the list is not absolutely complete; apple butter, beverage syrups, candy, catsup, cereals, chewing gum, chili sauce, chocolate, cocoa, condiments, confectionery, explosives, flavoring extracts, fruit preserves, fruit syrup, glycerine, honey, invert sugar, ice cream, jam, jelly, meat products, medicines, preserves, pickles, soda water, soft drinks, syrups, tobacco, wine.

Other classes who must furnish certificates to the wholesaler or retailer before sugar can be purchased are: canners, preservers and packers of every kind of vegetables, fruit, milk and meat; soda water fountains and dispensers of soft drinks. Bottlers of soft drinks.

The use of sugar is prohibited to leather tanners and manufacturers of non-edible products and no certificates will be issued to them.

The effect of this rule is that no manufacturer using sugar will be permitted after May 15 to purchase without the surrender of authorized sugar distribution certificates issued by the state food administrator. Manufacturers may obtain certificates at the office of Acting State Food Administrator John T. Cushing in St. Albans, upon delivery of the required sworn statement which shows the amount of sugar to which manufacturer is entitled.

Before certificates can be issued, manufacturers must make out a definite report on the form prepared by the food administration, which can be secured on application to the Vermont Administration Offices in St. Albans. The sugar rationing plan at present contemplated will endure for the month of May and June but it may become necessary to continue it in effect for July and August.

Certificates will be issued by the state food administrator covering the period from May 15, to July 1, in accordance with their sworn statements. Certificates will be issued in denominations of from 50 pounds to 60,000 pounds, and the manufacturer receiving them shall sign his name on the back of them in the space set apart for that purpose. No wholesaler or retailer is to sell sugar to any manufacturer except on the certificate and then only in the quantities set forth on the certificate. The certificate is to be cancelled by the wholesaler after it has come into his hands and returned to the state administrator.

The statements to be submitted by the manufacturers as the basis on which the sugar certificates are to be issued should include all sugar purchases made by the manufacturer up to May 15, and consequently will not be accepted by the state food administrator before that date although application for them should be made before then.

Mr. Cushing said to-night that manufacturers should give this matter their best attention and should be accurate in making out their statements of sugar requirements, for lack of definiteness or any evasion will result only in delay and the inability of the manufacturer to obtain sugar as well as the refiners are under strict orders not to make any sale of sugar on and after May 15 except in cases where the duly authorized sugar certificate is surrendered by the buyer.

GERMAN PEOPLE ARE IN UNREST

Over Rejection of Suffrage Reform by Prussian Diet

KAISER HURRIES BACK TO POTSDAM

Has Summoned Chancellor Hertling into a Conference

Berne, Switzerland, May 8.—(British Admiralty per Wireless Press)—Emperor William has returned to Potsdam owing to the political crisis resulting from the rejection of suffrage reform by the Prussian diet. Count Von Hertling, the imperial chancellor, has been summoned to Potsdam to report on the situation.

First Call to Home Canners.

Can all you can, in any way you can, at any time you can, urge the cooking editor of the Woman's Home Companion, who says in the May number:

"There were unpatriotic rumors last fall that the whole canned food was a failure. A woman, trained and experienced in domestic science, followed up these reports of spoilage, traveling 'r-a-one' end of the country to the other, and she found the enormous amount of canning done by American women successful beyond all expectation.

"Last year was a splendid beginning; but we must make a bigger, better record for 1918. The need for conserving food is even greater, and there must be an increase. While the earth is warm and gardens and fields are producing food, we must provide for the cold and hunger of winter.

"Millions of glass jars were manufactured, sold, and used last season. These jars will now be standing, clean and empty, in rows on closet shelves all over the country. Every one that is filled again will be ammunition to help win the war. Though the war was suddenly ended, the need for food would be just as great.

"Let no one do less than last year.

"Raise, can and dry, dry and can what you can raise—for yourself, for your family, and for your neighbor who will need help. Use all the garden produce that is required for the daily tables, but no more, and preserve the rest for future use by any method that is safest and most convenient to you."

Many Returns.

Tim—Are you going to Alice's birthday party?

Tom—What birthday is it?

Tim—Her twentieth.

Tom—No, I went last year.—Milestones.
